AGS Director

Congratulations to each of you who are now alumni of the 1996 Arkansas Governor's School. It was surely a unique summer. There were presentations by Governor-designate Huckabee, Cabinet member James Lee Witt, as well as Senators Pryor and Bumpers. There were, of course, many Area I, II and III classes—even on Saturday mornings— featured speakers, featured films, and a trip to see Beehive. But most memorable of all will be your own personal experience of Governor's School. After having been selected to attend, the conscientious student continues to make the most of the academic, cultural, and social opportunities afforded by the taxpayers of Arkansas. As a participant, you will automatically become a spokesperson for the program. You are among the very few in the United States to have experienced the unique, comprehensive residential program for gifted students that we call Arkansas Governor's School. Please take that responsibility seriously and remember to thank the taxpayers, legislators, Arkansas Department of Education personnel, your school administrators, teachers, and parents for helping you get here and for providing you the opportunity to participate.

The faculty and staff have endeavored to make the 1996 AGS program as conducive as possible to your social, intellectual, artistic, and conceptual development. The curriculum, activities and events were meant to stimulate your development. You have had the opportunity to investigate various theories of knowledge and to think about some of the most important issues of your generation. You were expected to analyze the informational content, the assumptions made, as well as the implications of whatever was discussed and not to be satisfied with simplistic, entertaining, jingoistic sound bites. The success and value of the AGS program will be measured not only by how much you have learned about your particular disciplinary focus in the arts or sciences, but also by how much you have learned about yourself. The ability to reach your full potential and achieve your personal aspirations provides the real measure for our success. By design, much of the learning occurred outside of the classroom and in the community you formed for the six weeks of the 1996 AGS. Learning is something far too important to confine to a few hours in structured classrooms. You are encouraged to continue to take responsibility for your education as well as your community, wherever you find yourself. Learning requires motivation and effort as does the formation of community. Both are certainly worthwhile endeavors and both are critical to your quality of life.

We, the faculty and staff of the 1996 AGS, all wish you the very best, and we will remember the opportunity we had to work with you. May you dream great dreams and achieve the greatest of your aspirations!

Sincerely,
Bruce Haggard

Epistemology can be fun!

—Bruce Haggard
AGS Director

Area II encourages critical thinking and conceptual development in exploring the foundations of knowledge. Discussions, which often cut across disciplinary lines, tend to center around epistemological and normative issues raised by 20th century theorists. The goal of these discussions is not so much to reach agreement as it is to progress to deeper levels of intellectual reflections.

Area III

Area III is designed to foster the development of personal resources to meet the challenges the students confront as their knowledge expands and they encounter alternative worldviews. As part of an over-all integrated curriculum of AGS, Area III attempts to create an environment of trust, confidentiality, and experience. The goal is to provide students with insight into the nature of their abilities, the advantages these capabilities might provide, and the anxieties these aptitudes might generate, as well as make them aware of the societal responsibilities they have toward various communities to which they belong. In this way, students may be able to optimize their use of those abilities.
